DAVEY'S RELIEF
PROGRAM HITS

by Temporary Legislation, Bittinger Says(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, May 21.—The administration's $11,500,000 permanent relief program, which Gov.
Martin L. Davey hoped to see legislated within a few days, encountered difficulties today.Paul P. Yoder, Democratic floor leader in the senate, asserted the senate would require almost a month to consider the bill. The senate has a bill which would enable hard-pressed counties to borrow from the present $3,000,000 relief fund until July 15.

Want It In Present Form

Speaker J. Freer Bittinger said the administration would insist upon enactment of the measure in substantially its present form as such as possible. He hoped to see the house pass it this afternoon.Bittinger said he approved amending the administration bill to include a $3,000,000 rotary fund, but that he opposed passage of any
"stop-gap" legislation."If we passed a temporary bill," he said, "when it expired we would be facing the same situation we face now."At the same time relief officials of Cuyahoga and Lucas counties protested before the house finance committee against a provision of the administration bill which would require counties to assume part of the relief burden.The officials said they could not pay 25 per cent, much less the 50 per cent, that would be required later.Governor Davey submitted an $11,500,000 program designed to provide for Ohio's needy until Jan.
31 last night and told the legislature in a special message that stopgap legislation would cost from $3,000,000 to $4,000,000 more a year than a long-term program.

Bills In Senate and House

Sen. Bernard Donovan (D-Lucas) immediately introduced identical bills in the house and senate to carry out his program but Senate Majority Leader Paul P. Yoder estimated that committees could not complete action on these bills until June 20, ten days before expiration of the present relief law.Yoder declared party leaders in

PLAN PUSHED
BY COMMITTEESenate Finance Unit in Agreement on Compromise MeasureINCREASE LEVIES ON CORPORATIONSBut Scuttle Proposal to Boost Normal Income Tax Rate(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, May 21.—Whipping all but one member into line, the senate finance committee today reached agreement on a compromise plan for increasing corporation taxes but scuttled a proposal, at the loss of considerable revenue, for boosting the normal income tax rate.Moving along swiftly after days of delay, the committee thus reached accord on the vital part of the revenue bill.

Provisions of Issue

The compromise would call for a flat 18 per cent tax on corporation income, a flat 7 per cent on income withheld from distribution, exemption of $1,000 from taxation for corporations making no more than $20,000 a year, and retention of the present capital stock and excess profits taxes.Smiling broadly, Harrison said the committee had made "very good progress" and he expected it to be able to report out a bill early next week.So greatly at odds was the committee during today's session that some members at one time threatened to leave the committee chamber.

One vote divided the members 11

to 8.
Harrison said the compromise corporation tax plan would raise somewhere over $500,000,000 and said the treasury had been asked to submit exact estimates as to the yield.

May Be Short of Goal

The indication was it would fall considerably short of the $623,000-000 of permanent revenue sought by President Roosevelt to meet the cost of the new farm program and prepayment of the bonus. Harrison had no definite reply when he was asked where the committee would get the remainder of the money.The committee, he said, also agreed to strengthen a section of existing law providing for penalty taxes on corporations which build up "unreasonable surpluses."Also approved was an amendment by Senator Loneragan (D-Conn.) to permit insurance to be taken out, payable to the government, for meeting estate taxes.Nineteen Seeking

THE SPIRIT OF SALEM

"By their deeds ye shall know them."

Salem people may be pardoned for pointing with pride to their deeds, when it comes to supporting the eight welfare organizations which comprise the Community Chest. For 25 years—ever since the first campaign in 1911 when funds were raised to establish Salem City hospital—they have opened their hearts and responded to appeals to support and maintain the institutions which represent the spirit and the soul of the community.

Yes, Salem is proud of her welfare organizations—Salem City hospital, the Memorial building, Red Cross, Home for Aged Women, Salvation Army, Boy Scouts, Quaker City Band, and Community Band. As evidence of this, the men and women of the community today point with pride to the $17,000 pledged in the annual Community Chest campaign which closed last night, for the operation of these organizations for another year.

So long as this response is represented in donations ranging from a few cents to $1500, contributed by individuals and corporations, just so long will the spirit of Salem survive. For 25 years the people of this city—the finest community of 12,000 souls in Ohio—have demonstrated that they have a soul, and that they appreciate what these organizations are doing to make their lives worth while.

Executive committee members, team captains and workers on the teams, totaling more than 125, did a splendid job in their solicitation for funds for the 1936 Community Chest. But the congratulations that come from the heart and the soul go to those who contributed as best they could, whether it be a few cents or a few hundred dollars, for the perpetuation of those organizations which contribute so largely to the welfare and progress of a community which recognizes its responsibilities to those in need and to the younger generation which will carry on the real spirit of Salem in the years to come.

Congratulations and good wishes to those who have worked so diligently during the last two days go hand in hand with a deep sense of appreciation of the response which must make Salem residents feel a little better for having done their part.

TESTED AND FOUND WANTING

"It is a sad commentary on our form of government when every decision of the supreme court seems designed to fatten capital and starve and destroy labor," cried John L. Lewis, union labor's man on horseback, when informed of the Guffey act decision. With due allowances for Mr. Lewis's personal interest in governmental assistance for the organized labor movement, particularly in the soft coal industry whose workers look to him for advice, he and others like him might be reminded of a few facts they have ignored.

The same supreme court which they would like to get rid of in favor of a compliant congress and a president regarded as favorable to their special interests also rules on other constitutional cases. For instance, it might rule some day on their right to speak and write freely, or to be protested against other invasions of the rights which they talk about so often. In that case, a little "reactionary" reasoning would be more than welcome.

The president of the United States may not always be called "brother" by the men who hold the reins of the union labor movement. It is possible there might be some day a president actually hostile to them and a congress willing to do his bidding. In that case, Mr. Lewis and his kind would have need of a supreme court, a Constitution and a lot of luck besides, to save their skins.

The new deal's bold attempt to set up an authoritarian state without popular permission, in defiance of the Constitution, has been a stern test of American ability to understand and protect the strongest charter of freedom enjoyed by any nation in history. It is painfully obvious that the test caught many prominent leaders off their guard. They neither understood nor cared to understand anything but their own immediate interests.

THE STARS SAY

For Friday, May 22

This should be an important and memorable day, judging by the auspicious rule of the major planets. There is prospect of transactions with so-called "big business," or with those in power and authority. These will be found friendly to meritorious propositions. Strong friendships with these and monetary affiliations of importance are shown.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a very important and progressive year, with affiliations with large interests flourishing. This may be in investments, speculation or other important projects in which the friendly support of elders and those in power is assured. It is an auspicious time for putting over cherished hopes and wishes, but be cautious with the health and energies.

A child born on this day may be steady, industrious and ambitious, and may attain social and business standing and popularity.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, May 21—This summer has marked the evanishment of nearly all the picturesque sidewalk salesmen along the 42d street library wall and the lower East Side. Of course many are off to trail circuses and carnival shows, but the majority, it is said, are on relief.

They are about last of the exponents of barter to be affected by depression. In the first dips of hard times they often prosper. The pitch men are a strange breed of nomads, generally sober, working hard for slim profits and living off to themselves. All suggest red sparks.

Most have monikers in the manner of hoboes. Such as Denver Pete, Silent Harry and Frisco Ned. Few marry, and when they have finished for the day may usually be found occupying chairs in the offices of those one-flight-up lodging houses. Or the Mills hotels.

Just as Variety is the Bible of the performers, so is The Billboard the Koran of the pitchmen. There is a department conducted especially for them. Police records show pitch men are seldom mixed up in either major or minor crimes. And rarely does anyone see them smile.

Observation: James Cagney walks as though he had just washed his hands and was looking for a towel.

Faith Baldwin seems out front as the year's most prolific writer without sacrificing quality for quantity. In twelve months she has authored two published novels, two serialized novels and three short stories. Aside from her literary endeavors, she extends a personal supervision over several growing children and somehow finds time to indulge at intervals her passion for fishing. Also keeps up with the latest plays and feminine styles.

New York's young spenders—there are still a few playboys left—are notoriously bad debtors. So much so many exclusive shops and tailors will not deliver goods, save C. O. D. It is true most pay eventually, but after several years and when accounts have been put in the hands of lawyers. Strangely enough, they will pay their cafe and bar chits promptly. Otherwise perhaps it would put a crimp in their showing off at "No 21", the Colony and such.

Next to Broadway's evening throng, the biggest sidewalk jostle is on 14th street where the entire neighborhood seems to promenade after dinner. The glittering shops are open until 11 and there is still that happy-go-lucky mood so pronounced when uptown New York came down to Tony Pastor's to see Maggie Cline, Harrigan and Hart, Pat Rooney, Lottie Gilson and The Four Cohans. From the barny, dark-timbered Luchow's there still drifts the strains of the floaty Straus waltzes and every few blocks a dime museum barker with a lion tamer's roach sings of wonders inside. Save for the more modern dress and the absence of horse and trolly cars, 14th street remains much as it was 25 years ago.

There is a type of pavement moocher on 14th street not found in any other section. He is well dressed, works with a well dressed girl and has an embarrassed approach. Somebody has picked his pocket and he needs enough to get himself and his wife to their Jersey suburb—he nods toward her, waiting tearfully in a doorway. He rarely fails to get from 50 cents to a dollar.

Thingumabobs: Gabrielle Chanel, Paris modiste, is awakened at 3 a. m. for a light breakfast and does not eat again until lunch. The late Howard Thurston, magician, began his career as a bellboy, learning many tricks in that job. King Edward's favorite record is Ravel's Bolero. Kent Cooper, A. P. chief, can play any tune he ever heard on the piano by ear. Lily Pons loves to sing torch songs for her friends. Ethel Barrymore has been impersonated by more mimics than any other American actress.

There's something about a floor walker! I approached one today to inquire for the men's hosiery department. He gave me one of his shriveling once-overs and to impress him I added: "Silk hose." And just then Harry Evans, to spoil everything, walked by and called out: "Hello, old sox!"

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

New York City

Minerals Are Important
PHYSICIANS AND research workers in nutrition tell us that minerals are vitally needed by the body. These inorganic substances are necessary for good health and long life.

Minerals or mineral salts are not foods. They are elements found in foods. Certain of these are needed in larger quantities than others. But all are essential to the proper development of the body. They aid in the maintenance of health and the prevention of infection and disease.

Lime, phosphorus, iodine, iron, potash and magnesium are minerals. These substances are the residue or remains of food burned in the body, and which do not undergo any digestive changes. Minerals are utilized by the body in its daily work. They are not stored in the body and their supply must be replenished every day. When the diet is lacking in these, serious changes take place. The individual is readily susceptible to disease; he becomes irritable and easily fatigued. Often he complains of digestive disorders.

Check Diet
To guard against a deficiency of minerals check your diet. If it is well balanced, including vegetables, fruit, milk, meat, fish, wheat and dairy products, you are assured of a normal supply of these important substances.

Many of my readers have requested a list of foods in which minerals predominate. Let me say that the mineral content of a given food varies a lot, depending upon the section of the country in which it is produced. The method of preparation and cooking make a difference. In general, fruits, vegetables, water and milk are our best sources of minerals.

Lime and phosphorus build strong bones and teeth. They are often found in combination in the same foods. Lime is abundant in cabbage, chard, cauliflower, figs, spinach, oranges, prunes, celery, asparagus, apples and milk. Phosphorus is richly contained in walnuts, almonds, whole wheat, milk, egg yolk, cheese and lean meat.

Soda, magnesium and potash are body regulators, important in the functioning of certain body processes. They are chiefly found in shell fish, meat, and glandular organs, although small amounts are present in nuts, grains, vegetables and a few fruits.

These and other minerals or mineral salts play an important part in the life of an individual. Foods rich in these substances should be liberally included in the daily diet.

Answers to Health Queries

MRS. E. W. Q.—Will you please tell me how to overcome the "itch"?
A.—For full particulars restate your question and send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

SUITS Look Ahead to Summer Days

These models can be worn now or later on

SOFT little suits of sheer fabrics, if wisely chosen, should do duty until way into warm weather time. Those very lightweight woollens, often as sheer as any sheer could be, would be particularly good for vacation traveling clothes or for dull summer days when commuting is in order. Dark silk suits, too, would serve the same purpose. Here are three suits just right for now and wearable later on. At left is a redingote ensemble with a gay print silk frock and a good-looking navy wool coat. At right is a nice suit in navy crepe and satin. Black satin edges the dress and coat and makes the cummerbund belt. Just the commuter's ticket is the printed suit shown below. This one is a frock plus jacket, the dress with white organza collar and cuffs at its short sleeves. Wooden beads trim the tie string jabot. The jacket has stitched lapels. Such a suit is a good buy right now. They can be worn under a warmer top coat, and you can enjoy the fascinating effect they make with your new spring bonnet when you take off your top coat.

CHICAGO GRAIN
CHICAGO, May 21.—Sharp breaks in quotations at Liverpool led to downturns on Chicago wheat prices early today. Cables said Liverpool weakness was caused by poor demand for actual wheat, together with word of rains in Australia, where lack of moisture has been a cause of seeding delays.
Opening 3/4-%, off May 94%, July 85%-%, wheat then rallied somewhat. Corn started 1/4-% lower, May 63%, and afterwards firmed.

Outlook For Steel Called Promising

(By Associated Press)
YOUNGSTOWN, May 21.—The outlook for the steel industry is "promising" and steel prices are "headed upward" Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the board of the U. S. Steel Corp., said here today while inspecting the new continuous strip mill of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, with other high officials of that company and of "Big Steel".

"Prices have not kept pace with the rise in production costs", Taylor said. "Just how much the advances will be we won't know yet. They are likely to be for the third quarter."
"Labor costs have gone up considerably. We are glad to give out workers paid vacations, but it increases costs. The social security taxes on our pay rolls constitute a larger item. Other taxes have increased costs considerably. At present prices, even by practicing the greatest economy, the shareholders just dues are in a precarious position."
Ben F. Fairless, president of Carnegie-Illinois, said that plans for consolidation of that company and American Sheet & Tin Plate Co., have advanced, and will be announced by the middle of next week.

Hubbard Award Climaxes Career of Ellsworth

Presentation of the Hubbard gold medal of the National Geographic society by President Roosevelt to Lincoln Ellsworth climaxes the long and notable career of the polar explorer. In announcing Ellsworth as the recipient of the medal, which will be presented at the White House on April 15, Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, president of the society, cited the Arctic and Antarctic explorations of Ellsworth from 1925 to 1936, mentioning in particular the Antarctic flight last fall when Ellsworth and his co-pilot were lost for a month and a half. Only 12 have received the Hubbard medal, the select list including explorers Richard E. Byrd, the late Roald Amundsen and Charles Lindbergh. Ellsworth is the son of a rich industrialist but scorns luxury, was born in Chicago but dislikes cities, is a world-famous figure but prefers the solitude of unexplored places. He is married to the former Mary Louise Ulmer of Pottsville, Pa., herself a flyer, and lives in New York.

June Still Favored by Brides

Most traditions have taken a fearful tumble in these modern days of skepticism but June still holds its place as the favored month on the marriage calendar. The preference of brides for June traces itself back to ancient Roman days when the month was popularly supposed to be propitious for weddings. Scores of other customs connected with marriage own their origins to medieval and ancient customs. The "best man" once functioned as a "bodyguard" to the groom when he went to get his bride. The veil is a hangover from the days when it was considered immodest for the groom to see his bride's face before the ceremonies were completed. And the custom of "giving away" the bride is derived from the ancient practice of bartering and selling the prospective wives!

Colors Gay in Smart Styles for Spring

One of the problems to be considered in selecting that spring outfit is to combine smartness with comfort, to select an ensemble which appears chic yet is sufficient protection against the cool days common to April and even May. Margaret Lindsay chose a charmingly gay suit for the Easter parade, warm in weight and light in color. It is of white wool kasha, trimly tailored and single-breasted. A white and brown taffeta blouse and swagger white felt hat are accessories. Another suit with a definite holiday spirit is that sported by Gail Patrick who went in for a color scheme of beige and green. The jacket and skirt are of beige wool with an angora-like finish and the silk crepe blouse is green, dotted in beige. Anne Shirley's frock is a hand-blocked print in clear pastel shades of rose and pale green accented by black. At the neck is a clever mid-victorian ruff of finely pleated chiffon.

Blackmailer?

A. Henry Ross

Charges filed by Al Smith, Jr., son of the former governor, that he had been blackmailed out of $20,000 by three men who threatened to expose an alleged affair with a pretty blonde stenographer ended in indictment of A. Henry Ross, lawyer, above, and Max Krone, private detective.

Finger-Tip Terpsichore

A clever entertainer making his debut in New York is Andre Martin, young Frenchman, who has introduced his "finger ballet." He amazes his audiences with the dexterity with which he sends little dolls, fitted on his hands, through most intricate dance steps. He is shown with one of his ballet girls dancing on his nose. He wears a black glove with two fingers cut off, the two fingers being the legs of the dancer. Tiny dancing shoes are fitted to his fingertips.

Here's Latest in Nazi U-Boats

German U-boat fleet in harbor

Dwarfed by their "mother" ship, this fleet of Germany's new "vest-pocket" submarines, is shown anchored in the harbor at Kiel during a celebration. The submarines are models of efficiency despite their light weight, military experts agree.

But He Got the Story

The reporter retrieved his hat later, only slightly damaged.

ZEP STARTS ON RETURN VOYAGE

Will Complete Second of Ten Round Trips Planned for Summer

(By Associated Press)
LAKEHURST, N. J., May 21.—The dirigible Hindenburg headed back across the Atlantic today, its skipper hopeful that the winds which retarded its westward flight would speed it toward Germany.

The trip will complete the second of the ten round trips contemplated for the Zeppelin between Germany and the United States this summer. Before its scheduled return here June 22, however, the airship will make its second south Atlantic crossing to Rio de Janeiro.

Aboard were 15 passengers, one more than the giant dirigible's normal capacity, and a two-and-one-quarter ton racing plane belonging to James H. (Jimmie) Halzlip, St. Louis speed pilot.

Take Off at 10:05 p. m.

Twenty minutes after the last busload of passengers went aboard, the Zeppelin's commander, Capt. Ernst Lehman, gave orders to "up ship." Taking off at 10:05 p. m. (E. S. T.) the Hindenburg cruised leisurely over New York, then turned eastward to the sea.

At 5 a. m. (E. S. T.) the Hindenburg radioed its position as 52.54 north latitude, 67.11 west longitude, or about 356 miles out of Lakehurst and 80 miles southwest of Cape Sable.

The Hindenburg was making 33 knots.

Captain Lehman said he would set a course between the northern and southern trans-Atlantic steamship lanes, hoping to benefit from the westerly winds which delayed the ship's arrival at Lakehurst until yesterday morning. He planned no attempt to set a record, however.

CANTON, May 21.—Warned by a crackling sound from the rear of a truck a 32-year-old Dayton, truck driver and an unidentified companion escaped death late last night when a $5,000 cargo of fireworks exploded, blowing the truck to bits and awakening residents within several miles of the scene.

Carl Shaeffer of 3010 West 3rd st., Dayton, the driver, was transporting the load of fireworks from the Holden Co., plant at Pittsburgh to the Holden distributor. Riding with Shaeffer was a Holden Co. employee who was asleep when Shaeffer first noticed the crackling sound. The blast was heard for miles in all directions and attracted thousands of persons to the scene.

Ability and Spirit Of New York Giants Keeping Them Ahead In National League

Coming Back After Disastrous Western Tour, Giants Rallied to Win Seventh in Row and Climb From Fourth to First

By HUGH S. FULLERTON JR., Associated Sports Writer

The New York Giants, a team which has seen its starting pitchers finish only nine games out of 29; whose manager and leading hitter, Bill Terry, is on the bench because of injuries; which has had nearly all its key men hurt at one time or another and which was down to one able catcher for a time in first place in the national league.

It speaks volumes for the ability and spirit of the Giants that they have even remained in the race in the face of all those handicaps. To make it even more surprising, eight of those nine complete games have been hurled by two men, Carl Hubbell and Hal Schumacher, and Schumacher has finished only three times in eight efforts.

Coming back after a disastrous western tour, during which they lost six out of eight games, the Giants have rallied to win seven in a row and climb from fourth to first place in the league.

They took the lead by a direct frontal attack on the St. Louis Cardinals, yesterday, trimming the Cardinals 10 to 7 and routing their old teammate, Roy Parmelee. The Brooklyn Dodgers also staged an advance in the standings, as they just to show off some of the talent they may trade to the Chicago Cubs. With Van Mungo on the hill pitching six-hit ball, the Dodgers boys belted the 1935 champions 11 to 2 and moved out of the cellar. The Phillies replaced them after absorbing a 9 to 3 beating from Pittsburgh's Pirates as Floyd (Pop) Young smacked a pair of home runs.

On Short End

New York, Boston and Cleveland, running 1-2-3 in the American League, all came out on the short end of yesterday's encounters. The world champion Detroit Tigers, whose pitching has taken a decided turn for the better, outlasted the Yankees to win a ten-inning mound duel between Schoolboy Rowe and Red Ruffing, 4 to 3. Marvin Owen's homer was the winning blow for Rowe, who fanned ten as each pitcher gave six blows.

The St. Louis Browns, continuing their newly discovered hitting streak, pummeled the Red Sox 12 to 8 despite Jimmie Fox's ninth homer of the season and Washington edged out the Indians, 7 to 6, leaving Cleveland only a half game ahead of Detroit.

Merritt (Sugar) Cain, who seems to have taken on new life since the Browns traded him to the White Sox, pitched Chicago to its first shutout victory of the season when he blanked the Athletics with seven hits to win 4-0. In the day's other game the Cincinnati Reds overcame a five-run deficit in the last two innings, scoring seven runs in the eighth to trounce the Boston Bees 10 to 8.

Neither the Giants nor the Cubs troubles appeared entirely over after yesterday's games. Schumacher, although he went the route, gave 14 blows including homers by Terry Moore and Pepper Martin.

Will Be Oldest Competitor in 50,000 Meter Walk Sunday

(By Associated Press)

He is A. L. Monteverde, of Los Angeles. He will be the oldest competitor Sunday in a 50,000 meter walk, sponsored by the National A. A. U.

"Granddaddy" among the heel-and-toe artists, Monteverde has been a participant in walking and running events for nearly 50 years. A week after the local contest, he is scheduled to run in the National A. A. U. marathon race, over a 26-mile distance, at Washington, D. C.

Other "old-timers" booked for the 50,000 meter (31-mile) event here include Sebastian E. Lineman of Cincinnati, who looks younger than his 43 years, and Harry L. Clark of Boston.

SNYDER WORRIES OVER BUCK TEAM

Wears Out Several Pencils Figuring Points in Big 10 Meet

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, May 21. — Larry Snyder, coach of Ohio State's track team—and the middle west's No. 1 worrier—had a deeper than usual furrow between his eyes today.

Larry had worn out several pencils trying to figure his Buckeyes into the Western Conference championship (on paper) when he was forced to call off his ciphering to greet the invading coaches and athletes who are arriving in swarms for the Friday and Saturday classic.

As Snyder placed his much-chewed pencil back in his pocket his possible point totals for the four favored teams stood like this:

Indiana 53; Michigan 52; Wisconsin 49; Ohio State 46.

Something Wrong

"But there's something wrong somewhere in those figures," Snyder admitted. "But I can't find it. By my figuring the four top teams would score 200 points, but that leaves only 25 for the other six schools, since there are only 225 points in the entire meet. And last year the last six teams scored a total of 88½ points. They can't drop off that much, and yet each of those scores for the first four are distinct possibilities."

A couple of days ago Snyder figured Jesse Owens for four first places, Charley Beetham for another, and Dave Abbot and Mel Walker for the first two spots in the high jump, to assure Ohio State of 34 points without looking any further. He found at least 12 potential points in the other events for the Bucks, and grinned as he announced that the 46 points might give the title to Ohio for the first time.

Today he was back in the dumps, however, after looking over possibilities which he had chalked up for the foe.

MILWAUKEE HAS EYES ON FIRST

But Lofty Position Is at Least Two Days Out of Its Reach

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, May 21. — Manager Allan Sothoron's Milwaukee Brewers cast their eyes toward first place in the American Association baseball race today, but the lofty position was at least two days removed from their reach.

Milwaukee took over undisputed possession of second place yesterday by handing the league leading St. Paul club its fourth consecutive defeat, 9 to 8, while Minneapolis was losing to Kansas City.

The victory also moved Milwaukee within a game and a half of the lead, with an opportunity to gain another game today before moving over to Minneapolis.

Blank For Eight

Johnny Neiseling, Kansas City hurler, held Minneapolis scoreless for eight innings, but relaxed in the ninth when two runs scored to achieve his 8 to 2 win. The triumph enabled the Blues to push into third place ahead of Minneapolis.

Four hits by Stump and three by Madjeski provided the Kansas City batting spark. Madjeski driving in four runs and Stump two.

Columbus trimmed Indianapolis, 10 to 5, in a closely played night game. Five errors and eight walks aided Columbus in its victory. The Red Birds clinched the game in the seventh, scoring three times without a hit.

Toledo was forced to stave off a ninth inning Louisville rally for a 5 to 4 decision in another night game. The Colonels collected only six hits off Sullivan and Cohen.

BOWLING NEWS

Rolling off a tie for third place in the Class B city bowling league, the Deming Pumps defeated the Sanitary office two games straight at the Masonic temple alleys last night.

Demings won the first game, 810 to 740, and the second, 828 to 764. Whitcomb set the pace with single games of 212 and 213.

Demings victory in the match gives them the prize money offered by the team which finished third in the Class B league.

Halverstadt's Single Is Responsible For Victory

Scoring five runs in the eighth inning, the Salem Merchants nosed out Kensington, 6-5, in a Columbiana County Baseball league contest at Dunn Eden park yesterday. Darkness prevented the game from going full nine innings.

Behind, 5-1, as they came to bat in the last of the eighth, the Merchants went on a scoring spree that was climaxed by Nevin Halverstadt's single which brought the winning runs across the plate.

For seven innings the game was featured by a pitching duel between Frank Christy of the Merchants and Long of Kensington. Christy pitched four-hit ball up until the eighth inning when the Kensington batsmen hammered him for eight hits and three runs.

Halverstadt, Mike Sartick and Eddie Pukalski led the Merchants at bat with two hits out of two trips to the plate. Both of Sartick's hits went for doubles.

The victory was the third the Merchants have registered to date. They have lost two games.

Johnny Hrovatic chalked up his fourth win of the season when he pitched the Lisbon Hanna Oils to an 8-5 victory over Salineville in a County league game at Lisbon yesterday.

Hrovatic, who granted nine hits, was well supported by his teammates who pounded out 10 hits and took advantage of Salineville's seven errors to gain the victory. Lisbon scored three runs in the first frame, four in the fifth and one in the sixth. Salineville tallied in the first, second and eighth innings of the game. G. Madison pitched for Salineville.

The contest between East Liverpool and Sebring was postponed and will be played Friday, it was announced.

"THERE'S MURDER IN THE AIR"

by ROY CHANSLOR

CHAPTER XXVI

Jim led the way to the rear of the kitchen, and out onto a wide porch. Nicky followed closely. A big truck was backed up against the porch. It was loaded with legal beer, three point two, in full-sized thirty-one gallon barrels.

Three barrels were rolled onto the porch, and were stood upright. Nicky watched this operation wonderingly. The driver waved good-bye and drove away. Jim surveyed the three barrels with a grin.

"Good beer," he said complacently, "and strictly legit."

He stood by, instructing the men handling the barrels. Still upright, they were carefully moved through the door of the huge refrigerating room which opened off the porch. Jim dismissed the men, and they stepped into the kitchen, leaving Jim and Nicky alone. Jim quickly fastened the doors which led to the porch and the kitchen.

Then he twisted a lever, and a concealed door at the rear of the refrigerating-room opened to reveal the small dimly lighted room through which they had passed on their way. Jim peered at the barrels.

Nicky saw that one of them had apparently already been tapped. He stared as Jim seized a hammer and a chisel and began to pry off the top of this barrel. He stared harder at what he saw inside; the figure of a girl, bound and gagged.

Jim chuckled, lifted her into his arms. Her eyes were wide with fright, and she struggled feebly. Jim held her tightly, and motioned Nicky into the small room. Jim followed with the girl in his arms, twisted another lever, and the door to the refrigerating-room closed silently.

"Open up, Nicky," he said, grinning. "We got a guest."

Nicky opened the door to the stairs. Jim carried the girl up them. Nicky pressed the automatic catch inside the door and followed. Jim passed two of the doors in the long hallway, paused before the third, the one nearest the front.

At a nod, Nicky unlocked it with a key from his pocket.

Dawn had come, gray and cheerless, as Tyler and Nat trotted back toward the cottage, with the memory of Gordon's face, gray as the dawn itself, still haunting them. At the fountain Tyler stopped, leaned his back against the edge and fumbled for a cigarette.

"Well?" said Nat.

Tyler shook his head in exasperation.

"Nat," he said, "it's plain to me that besides ourselves, there are only two people on this estate that we can trust completely."

Nat raised his eyebrows inquiringly.

"And they are—Ruth, and Gordon himself," said Tyler. "The devil of it is that Gordon is now no use to us. He's just—like. I don't wonder, but the fact remains. We can't count on anybody but ourselves now. And that means we've got to depend almost entirely on—Ruth."

Nat nodded despairingly.

"It certainly seems obvious that Gaudie has an accomplice inside the house," he said. "That accomplice either made the attacks on Gordon and Helene himself—or aided some one from outside in setting in. And that accomplice tipped off Gaudie where Helene was."

"Exactly," said Tyler. "I notice that you say, 'That accomplice—himself.' You won't accept the possibility—"

"That it was a woman?" interrupted Nat quickly. "Of course I won't! Doris is innocent! Call that just blind faith if you will, but remember this, no woman knew where Helene was!"

"And who did know?" demanded Tyler. "Gordon himself, Dr. Grace, yourself, myself, Dr. Karase—"

He stopped himself and darted a swift look at Nat.

"Dr. Karase!" he repeated softly. "Don't be silly!" said Nat.

Tyler shrugged.

"You've forgotten something," said Nat. "Another person knew; Collins, the chauffeur who drove you to the sanitarium!"

Tyler gave an exclamation. Then he was off, his long legs striding toward the garage. Nat followed. Collins was asleep in the apartment over the garage which he shared with the other chauffeurs. They roused him. Tyler asked him to dress.

Collins did so without protest, and followed them into the garden. Very quietly Tyler told the man what had happened in the night. Collins gasped, stared at Tyler unbelievably.

"Collins," said Tyler quietly, "some one—either you or myself, or Mr. Benson, or Dr. Grace, or Mr. Gordon, told somebody, either inadvertently or deliberately, where Miss Helene was. Neither Mr. Benson or myself did so. I don't think Dr. Grace or Mr. Gordon did. Did you?"

The man wet his lips, ran his hand across his face. Then he nodded, slowly.

"Yes," he said hoarsely. Then, quickly, "I didn't see that it was any harm. She said she wanted to surprise Miss Helene—"

"She?" said Nat dully.

"Miss Doris," said Collins. "It was this afternoon when we were in the town—just before Mrs. Gordon—disappeared. Miss Doris ran back from the others. I was alone in the car. She said she was getting a surprise present for Miss Helene—asked me where she was, so she could have it sent. I didn't think—"

He stopped, turned a troubled face toward Tyler.

"I didn't realize," he said; "I told her."

Helene lay on a couch in a room with blank, windowless walls, a room illuminated by a single drop-light which hung from the ceiling. She didn't know whether it was day or night. How many hours had it been since the man with the black mustache had lifted her from that stifling barrel and carried her upstairs to this room?

Ages, it had seemed, she had lain there fighting to control her nerves, in that utterly silent room. She had heard music as she was carried up the stairs, dance-music. But it had been shut out completely as soon as that door had been closed behind the man with the black mustache, and the slim man with the hard little eyes.

Finally a man she had not seen before had brought her eggs, toast, marmalade, orange juice and coffee. She had refused them. He had shrugged and departed, leaving the tray. And then she had forced herself to eat. She had to keep up her strength; she needed it if she were to conquer the terror in her heart.

She must keep her mind clear, her wits sharp, must not dwell on the horror which still lingered in her mind, the horror of that night, in her bedroom, that shot from the curtained door, that seemingly interminable daze which had followed. Those things were intangible, vague, not understood. She must not dwell upon them—now.

She heard a key turn in the lock, and stared at the door. The black-mustached man slipped quietly into the room, and locked the door behind him. Helene shrank back on the couch until her back touched the wall. As he came slowly toward her, the drop-light in the center of the room illuminated his features. He was smiling. Her eyes went wildly about the room, fell despairingly on the blank and windowless walls. The man spoke, softly.

"Don't be afraid," he said. "I'm not going to hurt you."

The girl quivered her nerves as best she could, managed a feeble smile.

"That's better," he said.

He unbuttoned his coat, revealing half a dozen long thin cigars in his vest pocket. He took one of these, fastidiously cut off the end with a gold knife attached to his watch-chain, lighted it with a gold lighter. He took one or two approving puffs then turned his eyes to hers.

"Nobody's going to hurt you," he said. "Not if you act nice and sensible. It's money we want, of course. Your old man's got plenty of that. I'm sending him a little love letter, saying everything will be hunky-dory if he hands over two hundred and fifty G's."

The girl stared at him uncomprehendingly.

"Two hundred and fifty thousand dollars," he elaborated, smiling.

"Oh," she said. "That's a lot of money—"

"But I'm sure Dad—"

"Of course he will," said the man softly. "If his wife and his daughter ain't worth a quarter of a million—"

"His wife!" exclaimed Helene.

"Sure," said the man. "We got her too. Just to make it official. We won't hurt either one of you, if you'll—"

"Where is Carlotta?" demanded the girl.

"Meaning Mrs. Gordon?" the man asked. "She's in another nice little boudoir with no windows. Now here's the point; I want a note from each of you, see? Telling the old man he'd better do what we say—or else. I think that'll make him realize just what he's up against. Without those notes, he might get the crazy idea we'd already bumped you two ladies off, see? That would make him feel kind of bad. I don't want to worry him none."

"Why—why, of course I'll write the note," said Helene.

"Good," said the man.

From his vest pocket he took a fountain pen, handed it to her. Then he opened his coat, reached into an inside pocket, took out several envelopes. The girl saw that some of them had writing on them. She stood up and held out her hand.

"Give me something to write on," she said.

He grinned, selected a blank envelope, handed it to her, and started to put the others back in his pocket. The girl swayed suddenly, gasped, closed her eyes. The man hastily threw an arm about her. He felt her go limp; her hand clutched his convulsively.

With an impatient exclamation he picked her up, laid her on the couch. Her hand still held tightly to one of his, the hand in which he held the letters. With his other hand he opened her fingers. Her eyes flickered, then opened. Her fingers relaxed.

Her eyes flashed to the man's hand, took in the name on the top envelope, closed again. He gave her a sharp look. She opened her eyes, seemed to rouse herself by an effort, sat up on the couch, shaking her head apologetically.

"Oh—I'm so sorry," she breathed. "I—I was stupid of me. But I—I'm all right now."

The man regarded her for a moment through half-lowered lids. Then he shrugged, and replaced the envelopes in his pocket.

"Water?" he asked.

"Please," she said. "Would you mind?"

He grunted and crossed the room, went through a door. It was the bathroom, and like the other, was without windows. He turned on the water. While he waited a moment for it to cool, he stole quietly back to the door and peered cautiously at the girl. She was rubbing her temples ruefully.

The man grinned, filled the glass and took it to the girl. She drank it gratefully.

"Thank you," she said. "Now—about that note—"

Nat was filled with a feeling of helpless rage as he paced restlessly back and forth across the living-room of the cottage. It was bad enough, this waiting, under any circumstances. But now, alone, out of communication with everybody, it was almost intolerable.

Why were they all avoiding him? For everyone certainly seemed to be doing just that. He hadn't talked to a soul since luncheon. And that had been a meal filled with constraint. Immediately afterward Doris, complaining of a headache, had retired to her room. It was obviously an excuse.

Of course, he could understand why Gordon wanted to be alone; it was perfectly natural. But Doris—and even Ruth and Tyler! That was too much!

Had Doris, he wondered gloomily, seen the questions in his eyes? Was that why she was so suddenly afflicted with a headache?

Could she have seen him and Tyler talking with Collins? And guessed that Collins had revealed the fact that she had asked where Helene was? He brushed the thought aside impatiently. Doris could have nothing to conceal!

THE FAILURE OF NEW DEAL Boondoggling to cure unemployment is graphically shown by the artist. From March 1934 to March 1936, expenditures totaled 14 billion 968 million dollars, with a deficit of 7 billion 613 million dollars. Unemployment decreased only 236,000.

This deficit meant 32 thousand dollars for each person taken off the unemployment rolls. These billions are gone never to return, unless wrung from present and future taxpayers.

Squandering the national wealth on such a gigantic scale cannot be continued indefinitely. Ultimately, it must be felt by the Unemployed as well as by the Taxpayer.
